

FOUND DEAD ON PORCH

WITH ARMS FOLDED—A VICTIM OF PARALYSIS.

As Engineer on Western Maryland Railroad for Thirty-nine Years Passes Away.

Mrs. WILLIAMINA MILLS was found dead on the porch of the home of Amos Sillik near Biglerville on last Saturday morning, Feb. 7. She had gone to the porch, broom in hand, to do some cleaning and was found lying on her back with arms folded. Death was due to paralysis. She was discovered by Mr. Sillik who summoned her daughter, Mrs. Grace Decker, the housekeeper of Mr. Sillik. Mrs. Mills came from Baltimore last September to visit her daughter. The body was taken to Baltimore where funeral was held. She leaves one child, Mrs. Decker, formerly living in Hanover, Pa. Two sisters survive, Mrs. Susan Fink of Denver, Col., and Mrs. Elizabeth Gluker of Baltimore.

THOMAS M. ECKHART, of Baltimore, died on Sunday, Feb. 8, aged about 60 years. He was an engineer on the Western Maryland Railroad for about 29 years, his run being from Baltimore to Highfield on the local division and was known to every one along the line. He moved to Baltimore from Hanover about 20 years ago. The funeral was on Wednesday. He leaves two daughters, Misses Frances and Daisy Eckhart, both of Baltimore.

Mrs. AMANDA LAUCHMAN, wife of Samuel T. Lauchman, toll-gate keeper on the Hanover and Abbotstown turnpike, died Feb. 8, aged 61 years, 5 months and 20 days. The funeral was on Thursday, interment at Mummet's Meeting House. She is survived by her husband, two sons and three daughters.

WILLIAM LITTE died at Mt. Rock, Mt. Pleasant township, Friday, Feb. 6, aged about 55 years. He is survived by his wife who was Miss Sarah Hoffnagle, daughter of the late Nicholas Hoffnagle, of Irishtown, and three sons, Harry Little, residing in the West, Jacob and Frank at home. He is also survived by three brothers, John of Lebanon, Frank of McSherrystown, and Joseph of Mt. Rock. The funeral was held on Monday, interment being made in Coneyago Cemetery after a full mass of requiem in Sacred Heart Church, Rev. Fr. Kohl officiating.

JOHN KAUFFMAN died at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Buegard in East Berlin on Saturday, Feb. 7, aged about 71 years. Mr. Kauffman was a cripple all his life, not being able to walk until he was seven years old, and after that only with a cane or cane. The funeral was on Wednesday with services in the Lutheran Church and interment in the East Berlin Cemetery.

EVERETT SHUE died at his home at Old Town, Jan. 31, from pneumonia, aged about 47 years. He was a former resident of near York Springs and went to Iowa about five years ago where he owned a fine farm. Mr. Shue is survived by his wife, whose maiden name was Emma Shank, five sons and three daughters, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Shue, of near Bowdler. The remains were brought East and interred at Chestnut Grove Church at Lattimore.

JAMES DONALD SLAYBAUGH, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Slaybaugh, died at his home, Centre Mills, Monday morning at 6 o'clock, aged 8 months, from pneumonia and whooping cough. He is survived by his parents and the following brothers and sisters, Gladys, Pearl, Earl, Marguerite, Raymond and Claire, all at home. Funeral Wednesday afternoon, meeting at the house at 1:30. Services at the Bondeville Lutheran Church, interment in Bondeville Cemetery.

Mrs. MARTHA HAMILTON died at her home in Reading, Monday, Feb. 9, aged 70 years. She is survived by two sons, John Hamilton of Gettysburg, and Robert Hamilton of Reading. The body was brought to Gettysburg Thursday, and after services in the Presbyterian Church, interment was made in Lower Merion Cemetery.

Mrs. SARAH H. HOCKENSMITH, wife of John Hockensmith, of Mt. Rock, died Wednesday, Feb. 4, after a brief illness from pneumonia, aged 62 years, 3 months and 15 days. She was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Small. She leaves her husband and four children, John Hockensmith, Jr., of New Chester, Mrs. William Spilg of Abbotstown, Mrs. Agnes F. Tolman, of near Mt. Rock, and Mrs. Elizabeth Graft of Edgewood. One brother and three sisters also survive, Miss Small of Hanover, Mrs. James Hockensmith of near Mt. Rock, Mrs. John McMeister and Miss Julia Small of Spring Grove. Funeral Saturday, Feb. 7, regular high mass at Coneyago Chapel by Rev. Germanus Kohl, interment in the Chapel Cemetery.

ELMER MURRAY of Goodyear, Cumberland county, died Feb. 5, very suddenly from heart failure, aged 71 years, 9 months and 1 day. He was a veteran of the Civil War, a member of Co. F, 101st Penna. Vols. He is survived by his wife and the following children, Edward Murray of Goodyear, Mrs. Clayton Starnes of Idaville, R. I., Mrs. Thomas Ziegler of Gardners, Florence Murray of Lewisport, and Elmer Murray of Goodyear. Funeral on Monday.

ADDITION TO HIGH SCHOOL

ENLARGEMENT OF BUILDING HAS BECOME A NECESSITY.

Several Plans are Being Considered and Will be Within the Financial Ability of Board.

The necessity of an addition to the Gettysburg High School Building and how that necessity should be met was officially considered by the School Board at their regular meeting on Thursday night of last week and more fully discussed at a special meeting of the Board called for the purpose on last Tuesday evening.

The School Board faces the problem of the High School Building being crowded to its capacity, with one class being held in the library room, another in the upper hall and with a small outgoing class and a very large incoming class that the present building will not be able to answer the needs at the opening of the next school year.

This building has quickly justified, vindicated and demonstrated the wisdom and foresight of the School Board in its erection a few years ago.

The Board at that time recognized the imperative necessity of the new building. This paper after a thorough study of the condition advocated it, and in the face of some opposition the Board went ahead. The Committee gave them its most earnest support in what was done to meet the necessity. The erection of the High School Building was one of the greatest inspirations to the development of the eastern side of the town, which has been making wonderful progress.

Now the necessity of the erection of the building has been demonstrated by the fact that the building was not built large enough. The Board erecting it desired to build larger but were prevented from so doing because the cost would have exceeded the debt capacity of the town without putting the question to a vote of the people. Now the debt on the Meade Building and the High School Building has been so decreased that the total indebtedness of the school district is $17,000. The limit of debt to be incurred by the School Board without a vote of the people is about $25,000 so the present Board have a margin of over $10,000 upon which to go without a vote of the people. This sum is more than is needed and a new debt can likely be carried without an increase of the tax rate, the additional burden being but the interest charge, the payment of debt being postponed until the present debt has been liquidated, so that no additional tax rate would be required for the payment of the principal.

The Board at its meeting on Tuesday evening employed J. H. Crowe as architect for the addition to be erected and plans were discussed without any definite decision being reached. One plan suggested has been the extension of the assembly room southward to Hanover street, a distance of 25 feet, so as to enlarge its dimensions from 42 by 57 feet to 67 by 57 feet, an increase of the present capacity of nearly 60 per cent, and with an arrangement of the desks it could be made an assembly room with a seating capacity more than twice that of the present room and could be made convenient for the holding of all the school exhibitions, meetings, commencements, etc. This plan calls for a second story giving room for four extra class rooms.

A second plan calls for an extension toward the east with a second story, giving a larger assembly room and four class rooms on the second floor. This plan would likely involve a rule that would not require the senior class to occupy the assembly room and it is said this rule has worked out favorably at some places where it has been tried.

According to all the light and information that can be obtained the only course the present Board can pursue is to meet the necessity and to do this as fully and as economically as possible, for the future is not far when an enlargement of the High School Building may become a necessity and perhaps a rearrangement of the Meade Building to obtain necessary capacity.

The United Spanish War Veterans

Following the War with Spain, many soldiers were returned among the returning soldiers who sought to emulate the example of the Grand Army of the Republic and to perpetuate the memory of their military or naval service. Soon seeing the necessity for united action various organizations united in 1904 under the name of the United Spanish War Veterans, thus combining the first and only truly national order of veterans of this war and the subsequent insurrection in the Philippines.

They have gradually absorbed most of the other orders most notably "The Veteran Army of the Philippines" which had numerous camps in the Islands.

It is the only Spanish War Association that admits to its membership without distinction as to service, all veterans, of all branches of service, regular or volunteer without regard to where they served, provided only that they were in the military or naval service of the United States at some time between April 26, 1898, and July 4, 1902.

The U. S. W. V. as they are frequently called are recognized by the United States Government as the official representatives of the War with Spain, both in the Halls of Congress and in the memorial services at Arlington.

DIRECTORS' ASSOCIATION

ANNUAL SCHOOL DIRECTORS CONVENTION IN SESSION.

Delegates to State Convention Report—Election of Officers.

The 23rd Annual Convention of the School Directors' Association of Adams County met on Thursday morning in the Court House, Rev. J. Dow Ott making the opening invocation. Reports were first received from the delegates to the State Convention, Reuben D. Schwartz of Mr. Joy, W. W. Neely of Tyrone, Norman Berkheimer of Oxford, and Luther T. Cashman of Straban, making brief oral reports. Samuel R. Bair submitted a written report of which the following is a part:

J. C. Brown, president of the convention, spoke about the adoption of a course of study. In many instances too much time is devoted in filling or overloading the minds of pupils with study without classifying the subjects. A lot of play should be put in the course of study and make the school a playhouse. He criticized the methods of teaching and said we are not teaching the boys and girls the essentials of life. He made a plea for a course of study in which the pupils have some work to do and not all for the teacher.

Dr. John P. Jackson, State Commissioner of Labor and Industry, spoke of the laws of child labor and the employment certificate. One thing that was brought out during the discussion of this subject was that the children who are employed in the household and home duties are excluded from this law. He spoke at some length on the establishment of vocational schools and the passage of laws for their establishment. Vocational education means to fit the pupils for life. Vocational schools may be established by the district school boards they shall appoint advisory boards to supervise the schools. Ask the workmen and contractors what they think of vocational schools. The Department of Education pays 23 of the cost of vocational schools. He said the boy who must work at home is deprived of an education, where if he were permitted to attend a vocational school 1-2 day or 2 evenings in a week at the age of 21 he will be worth 6 boys who did not have the training in the vocational schools. He outlined the working of the Industrial Bureau saying that they have expert firemen and machinists who will be sent out when called upon. School buildings must be safe, sanitary and healthy. He said in his estimation Pennsylvania schools are among the best, in fact they are in a class alone.

H. A. Beyer said in part that even air schools should not only be for the sick or defective child but for the well pupils also. But there is no necessity for extravagance in buying paraffin appliances for ventilation. He also spoke of medical inspection in the schools, and the great good that is derived therefrom. To prove his statements he related an instance which occurred in one of the Cleveland schools: a girl, or one of the schools was crossed-eyed and upon careful inspection it was found that she had a defective tooth and after careful treatment her sight was restored to normal. The pupils learn more about school hygiene with sanitary methods about the school buildings than by study.

Dr. Samuel Dixon spoke of methods of sanitation, medical inspection in the school and the time of pointing out sex diseases, and laid a great deal of stress on the teacher being responsible for the general health of the pupils. It has been found that 74 per cent of the children in rural districts are defective; 27 per cent of these have defective hearing. Medical inspection in the schools make the helpless helpers; and raises the high standard of health and makes healthier and happier communities.

Dr. N. C. Schaeffer, on "The Directors' Attitude Toward a Teacher," said in the selection of a teacher, gain information of three persons of a friend, of an enemy, of the independent person. It is the business of the directors to make the teacher happy in his work. In visits to the school see something for praise, nothing says so much as praise except an addition at the end of the monthly salary. Let your attitude toward the teacher be sympathetic and not hostile.

He expressed his views on vocational schools; he said we should try it out but guard and be careful not to squander the taxpayers' money. We should handle the problem like men with common sense. Schools were not established for superintendents and teachers, but for the children.

The resolutions are as follows: 1st. That we recommend the making of medical inspection compulsory in the third and fourth class school districts, the same as in first and second class districts, said medical inspectors to be appointed by the boards of the various school districts.

A lively debate followed the reading of this resolution before the final vote was taken. A rising vote was necessary in order to determine the decision. The vote resulted in rejecting this resolution.

2nd. That we recommend that the names of all candidates for the office of director shall appear only on non-partisan ballots.

This seemed to appeal to the convention and was unanimously adopted without comment.

3rd. That we again recommend as we did at our last session, legislation to enforce proper recognition of properly organized training schools for teachers, in 2nd class school districts and the certificate issued to be under the direction of the State Superintendent and used only in the district in which the school is located.

This resolution after several amendments was adopted.

4th. That we would strongly recommend an increased appropriation for the direct maintenance of our public schools.

This met with the approval of the convention and was adopted without comment.

5th. That the title of the Act of 1913, Pennsylvania Legislature, law No. 272, regulating the opening of fire escapes, be changed so as to make it a part of the school code.

This also passed without any opposition and was unanimously adopted.

6th. That we favor the amending of the code so that the County Commissioners of every county in which there are less than 400 teachers be required to furnish the County Superintendent of Schools with a stenographer, for three days each week, or for such part of the time as is necessary; and that in counties of more than 400 schools, the County Commissioners be required to furnish the County Superintendent with a stenographer for the entire year.

This was unanimously adopted.

7th. That we oppose passage of any legislation or enactment of the law whereby the tenth consecutive employment of a teacher in a district shall constitute permanent employment or life tenure of said teacher in said school district.

This met with very little opposition and was adopted by a good vote.

8th. That we oppose the passage of a law providing any compensation for the directors to attend the meetings of any of the school boards.

Adopted unanimously without debate.

9th. That we oppose any legislation affecting the present law regulating compulsory vaccination.

This was discussed pro and con; it appeared that in case of an epidemic of smallpox a child who is immune from the virus could not receive a permit to enter school. It finally passed and was adopted without change.

The officers for the coming year were then elected as follows: President, Rev. W. K. Fleck of Fairfield; Vice Presidents, R. K. Major of Straban, and W. W. Neely of Tyrone; Secretary, Samuel R. Bair of Coneyago; Treasurer, Arthur C. Grist of Menallen.

Dr. Ezra Lehman of Shippensburg, and Supr. Rapp of Berks county, Dr. Nathan C. Schaeffer, Superintendent of Public Instruction, and Reed B. Teitrick, Deputy Superintendent, addressed the school directors Thursday afternoon and Friday morning and afternoon.

A more detailed account thereof will be given in our next issue.

DOES THE WORK OF CEMENT

Substitute Used in Turkey Has Been Found to Give Really Excellent Results.

Cement is almost unknown in the vicinity of Harput, Turkey. There an excellent substitute has been found that has met with rather good results when applied in exposed places, in filling crevices in water pipes, covering joints in stone floors, in fountains and for numerous other purposes where cement would be required. The mixture is as satisfactory in water as in exposed places, but it must be allowed to become thoroughly dry before it is submerged.

The mixture is slaked lime, mixed oil and cotton lye. General use followed out stone is used with a flat, hard surface will answer and the process is started by pouring the oil on a hard, flat surface, after which the lime is dusted in. It is then kneaded until the whole is thoroughly mixed and about the consistency of dough. The more it is kneaded the better it becomes. This compound has undergone a severe endurance test at the American consulate at Harput. Two years ago the stone floor in the balcony on the north side of the consulate leaked in several places and rotted the woodwork supporting the balcony. The floor was finally taken up, new timber added, and the stone slabs again put down. Between each stone this mixture was forced in and smoothed over the joints. It took several days for hardening. The oil spread out on the stones for about half an inch from each joint, leaving a slight mark, but the compound soon hardened like cement, and now the surface over the part where the stones are joined is as hard and smooth and watertight as if cement had been used.

FAULT IN AMERICAN VOICE

Touch of Harmony Does Not Seem to Be There, as It Is With Other Races.

The American voice lacks cadence. The touch of harmony is lacking. In depth or shrillness, its strongest quality is monotony of tone.

In conversation it is colorless, and half of the resources of the vocal cords are unused or undeveloped. A strident, high-pitched, nasal voice fails in saying any good thing well.

Every one has the power of speaking with sweet inflection. Every one can attain a repositful utterance and clear enunciation by training the ear and voice to work together in avoiding harsh tones, and cultivating the middle and more mellow register in every voice.

Excitement sends it up to a screaming pitch, but self-control will lower it again, and its playground should be through the varying harmonies or cadence of five notes.

According to Thomas Wentworth Higginson, our English cousins put more cadence, more up and down, into an inquiry, "What time is it?" than Americans would into the announcement that a president was shot. A crowd of baseball fans will pitch the cheering on a high note and yell itself hoarse. In the same number of Europeans, the shouting would be full of undertones and cadences. They would sing their enthusiasm.

Great Britain and Slavery.

Seridom in England was finally abolished in 1660. For a century afterwards colonists and others on a visit to England were allowed to bring their slaves with them, but by a judgment of the queen's bench in 1772, when an attempt was made to regain possession of a fugitive slave it was decided that no man in Great Britain could be held as a slave. An act for the abolition of slavery throughout the British colonies was passed by the British parliament, chiefly through the exertions of Wilberforce, in 1833, and on August 1, 1834, nearly 8,000 slaves became free. Their owners were compensated by the British government to the extent of £20,000,000 sterling. Slavery was abolished in the East Indies, then under the control of the East India company, in 1833. Great Britain had nothing to do with slavery in South America or the United States.

"Don't Speak" Club.

The Moscow prefecture has just confirmed the statutes of a newly-formed club in that city the chief feature of which is the absolute silence imposed on its members within the club precincts.

Any infraction of this cardinal rule involves a monetary penalty. The club is well appointed and luxurious, is equipped.

Gestures is the only medium of intercourse among its members. The same rigid regulation obtains at the club buffet and in the dining-room, as well as in the library and general rooms. Orders are conveyed to the silent waiters by means of tablets they carry.—Daily Mail.

Firing High.

Bishop Boyd Carpenter, as reported in the London Times:

"Instead of saying to the children, 'You shall not do this or that,' they should say, 'You should keep the whole of that great organism which God has put into your care, with its delicate forces, physical, moral, and intellectual, in such a state of healthful activity that they shall be combined in your own individuality in such sort as to be real powers for good through the whole length of your days.'"

Harold (continuing to pull the cat's tail)—"What did you say, mother?" (She says it again).—Punch.

A BRONCHIAL COUGH

is wearing and dangerous because the inflamed, mucus-filled tubes interfere with breathing and the fresh air passes through that unhealthy tissue.

Probably no other remedy affords such prompt and permanent relief as Scott's Emulsion; it checks the cough, heals the linings of the throat and bronchial tubes and strengthens the lungs to avert tuberculosis. This point cannot be emphasized too strongly—that Scott's Emulsion has been suppressing bronchitis for forty years and will help you.

Be careful to avoid substitutes and insist on SCOTT'S. AT ANY DRUG STORE.

MOVIES FOR THE CHINESE SHOWED INSTINCT OF SWANS

New Idea That May Mean a Great Dual in the Development of the Race and Country.

Students of race development in the far east may well find a strictly non-commercial interest in the experiment involved in the establishment of a heavily capitalized company in Hong-kong to produce in cities and larger towns of China motion-picture shows with explanations in the vernacular. How much such shows may mean to the education of the Chinamen can only be guessed by the Occidental. That the isolation of China from the world's growth, the real ignorance of the Chinese masses as to all things outside their own land, are responsible for most of the conditions that cause peril to the new republic from foreign powers is evident enough to any one who cares to think.

The quickness of the Chinese mind is not doubted. Perhaps there is no race on earth that is better qualified to grasp what the "movies" have to offer. The panorama without speech has a peculiar appeal to the Celestials. A few years with the films that show the life, the drama, the interests of Caucasian races may do more to create a new China than any political changes at Peking. Education has to be sugar-coated everywhere. The "movies" should have a great future in China.

WAS NOT FOR GENERAL USE

Postoffice, When First Established, Meant Only to Carry Official Correspondence.

The postoffice was first established for the principal, and in some countries for the exclusive purpose of carrying official correspondence by mail. Later, in France, Great Britain, and the United States, because of the great expansion and commercialization of the postal system, the free carriage of mail matter came to be regarded as a privilege, and this privilege was claimed by persons in official position. In England the house of commons claimed the privilege as early as 1660. It was abolished in Great Britain, however, by the passage of Rowland's cheap postage measure in 1839. In the United States the first appearance of the franking privilege is traceable to the action of the continental congress assuming control of the postoffice in January, 1776. It is interesting to learn that it was then granted to all private soldiers actually in service for all letters they might write or that might be written to them. In the early years of the United States government the privilege was granted widely, but it soon became necessary to restrict it. An act of March 3, 1845, limited the privilege to the president, the vice-president, members and delegates in congress, the third assistant postmaster general, and all postmasters. Other offices were directed to keep quarterly accounts of postage.

Old English Custom Kept Up.

An ancient custom of the Cinque Ports was celebrated a short time ago at Brightlingsea, Essex, England, when Mr. Douglas Stone was re-elected mayor, with old-world ceremony, in the belfry of the parish church. Rev. Arthur Perwee, vicar of Brightlingsea, being re-elected recorder. Six jurats, or assistants, were also elected, paying a fee of 11 pennies. Brightlingsea is "attached" to the Cinque Port of Sandwich, and its mayor is known as the deputy being deputy to the mayor of the latter town. The newly elected mayor has to journey to Sandwich to be invested with the chain of office, this chain being of a very handsome design of gold, silver, shells and silver sprays, and having attached a massive oval seal, supposed to be one of the most valuable seals in England. The office of deputy, which dates back to the year 1411, carries with it various privileges which are jealously guarded.

Courage.

The most indispensable and valuable asset for the conduct of life is courage—courage to endure, courage to construct and reconstruct, courage to go on. Without these how shall we do more than drag out a miserable existence, moving from place to place, like tramps and beggars, living on the doles late offers us as we slouch along unpremeditated ways? Could there be a better prayer for the opening year than this? "Give us courage to be masters of ourselves, courage to swim against the stream, courage to drown when our due time is come, with serene hearts and quiet faith in God." When that prayer is answered, living deserves a song and dying becomes an episode in the history of a man. If religion did not more than make this forward looking courage possible, it would deserve our reverence and pursuit.—Boston Transcript.

Birds Had Learned the Trick of Ringing a Bell to Get Their Supply of Food.

During a recent visit to the cathedral city of Wells, in Somersetshire, a Scotsman correspondent was witness of a curious incident. The Episcopal palace is surrounded, just as in olden times, by a wall and a moat. The haunt of swans, ducks, and other aquatic birds. The moat is crossed at the entrance to the palace grounds by a drawbridge with a battlemented gateway with towers, in one of which is the gatekeeper's lodge. From a bracket fixed in the wall of one of these towers overlooking the moat a bell is suspended, with a cord attached.

One afternoon about five o'clock, while watching the movements of the various birds in the water, the correspondent heard the ringing of a bell, and, on looking to see whence the sound came, he observed that one of the swans was vigorously pulling the cord evidently to attract attention. As no immediate notice was taken of its efforts, the impatient bird continued to ring the bell violently until there appeared at the window of the tower the wife of the gatekeeper, who threw out a quantity of food to the expectant waterfowl.

On making inquiries as to the origin of this interesting episode, the correspondent was told that a number of years ago a daughter of the bishop of Wells, being much interested in the birds inhabiting the moat, taught the swans to ring the bell at feeding-time, at five o'clock in the afternoon. This practice has been continued by successive families of swans down to the present day, and it would seem, therefore, as if the birds transmitted to their offspring the knowledge that when the cord was pulled the bell would ring and that food would follow.

DEMAND FOR FURS ENORMOUS

That the World's Supply Will in Time Be Exhausted May Be Considered Certain.

The fur trade in the far north is still on very much the same basis as when Cartier and Champlain first traded beads and knickknacks with the wondering chiefs of Quebec. A million and a half dollars' worth of merchandise goes north from Edmonton, Canada, every spring to be exchanged for the two and a half millions of fur that come back in mid-summer and autumn. So far as the fur trade in America is concerned, the traders claim that there is no perceptible falling off as yet; that, in fact, more fur is being brought to market each year. But in Russia, Germany, Japan and Australia there is a general decrease in the supply. In the past 20 years the world's catch of the 12 most important furs has fallen off from five per cent. to 700 per cent., while the demand for the more expensive varieties has multiplied enormously. The ceaseless effort to satisfy this demand can have but one end, and it is only logical to expect that even the great game preserves of the Canadian north and Alaska will in time be hunted bare.

NATURE'S WARNING

Gettysburg People Must Recognize and Heed It.

Kidney disease comes mysteriously, but nature generally warns you. Notice the kidney secretions. See if the color is unhealthy—If there are settlements and sediments. Passages frequent, scanty, painful. It's time to fear serious kidney trouble.

It's time to use Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have done great work in Gettysburg.

Charles Wilson, farmer, R. F. D. 5, Gettysburg, Pa., says: "I have used several boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and have found them fine for kidney complaint. I had sharp twinges across the small of my back and in my sides. By using Doan's Kidney Pills in time I was rid of these troubles. I strongly recommend this remedy."

The above statement must carry conviction to the mind of every reader. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy ask distinctly for Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mr. Wilson had—the remedy backed by home testimony—50¢ all stores. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

WILL LEAD FIGHT.

Palmer and McCormick Enter
Democratic Primary Race.

WILSON AND PALMER ENTER

Will Seek Nominations For Governor and Senator.

PRESIDENT GIVES APPROVAL

Candidates Have Five Records in Politics and Public Service and Both Oppose Old Guard Machine.

Gettysburg, Pa., Feb. 10.—The Democratic primary race for governor and senator is expected to be one of the most interesting in the history of the state. The candidates are Congressman A. Mitchell Palmer and Senator James C. McCormick. Both are well known in the state and have a record of public service. Palmer has been mayor of Harrisburg and has served in the state senate. McCormick has been mayor of Gettysburg and has served in the state senate. Both are opposed to the old guard machine and are expected to lead the reform movement.

The announcements by both candidates were accompanied by declarations that the overshadowing issue of the campaign was the destruction of the Pennsylvania machine and its bipartisan alliance, and with the support of the Wilson administration and the Wilson brand of progressive government in Pennsylvania.

What Palmer Has Done.

Congressman A. Mitchell Palmer was born May 4, 1872, in Lawrence county. He has spent his life in Stroudsburg, Monroe county, where the family for generations has been a prominent factor in community life.

He graduated from the Stroudsburg high school in 1893 with highest honors, prepared for college in the Moravian parochial school at Bethlehem, entered Swarthmore college, from which he was graduated in 1897 with highest honors, and thereafter studied law while acting as a court stenographer, being admitted to the bar in 1899. A partnership with the late Hon. John D. Storm, a former judge and former congressman, continued until the latter's death in 1901.

His political career began with his election to congress in 1908, where he has since served for three terms, representing the Twenty-sixth district, comprising Pike, Monroe, Carbon and Northampton counties. Since that time he has been at the right hand of the Democratic leaders—Camp Clark now speaker, and Oscar W. Underwood—and has been relied upon by them in every contest above probably any other single member on the floor.

His Work as Mayor.

During his administration Harrisburg underwent a complete physical metamorphosis. Paved streets took the place of dirt roads, a splendid park system was planned and far advanced toward completion, modern sewers took the place of open ditches and the people were supplied with an abundance of pure filtered water. Instead of the filthy raucous drawn from a polluted river, under his administration the volunteer fire department was reformed and improved, and the police department was taken entirely out of politics and brought to a state of discipline and efficiency never before approached in Harrisburg. Gambling houses, speakeasies and disorderly houses were closed up and their proprietors sent to prison or into voluntary exile.

He has always been actively interested in and a generous contributor to every charitable, philanthropic and educational enterprise in Harrisburg and his benefactions have extended far beyond the limits of his own city and county.

Has Broad Interests.

A farmer as well as a banker and newspaper publisher he has been a leader in every enterprise for the improvement of agricultural methods and the breeds of live stock. For a number of years he has been a trustee of Pennsylvania State College and has taken a deep interest in the institution.

He was one of the original movers for coal roads in Pennsylvania and has enthusiastically supported every project for the betterment of the state.

The same work that Mr. McCormick has done during the last three years in the state and county has been done by him in the city of Gettysburg. He has been mayor of the city for three years and has been a member of the city council for five years. He has been a member of the state senate for three years and has been a member of the house of representatives for five years. He has been a member of the national senate for three years and has been a member of the national house of representatives for five years.

McCormick's Career.

James C. McCormick was born in Harrisburg, Pa., in 1874, and graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1896. He was a member of the central Pennsylvania, and his family has always been prominent in the agricultural, industrial and professional life of that part of the state. He was graduated from Yale in 1896, and during his last year there was captain of the Yale football team. In 1907 his alma mater conferred upon him the honorary degree of master of arts. In June, 1908, he was elected a member of the Yale corporation to succeed former President William H. Taft. After his graduation in 1896 he returned to Harrisburg, and in February

QUITE STRONG ON ECONOMY

Of Course. These Remarks May Never Have Been Made, but Here They Are, Anyway.

"Do you know, I'm getting so I don't care for eggs any more. Honest. I used to like them for breakfast, but now I don't care whether I ever get one. It's no hardship for me to go without them, I assure you."

"Sometimes my mother says: 'Why don't you use more butter on your bread?' She thinks I ought to eat a lot of it, but I don't. Besides, what's the use of eating a lot of something you don't care particularly for, especially when it's expensive?"

"People, I think would be a whole lot better off if they ate less meat. I used to think that meat was a necessity, but I don't any more. Why, I could get along on about a pound of beefsteak a week. I think it's a ridiculous nonsense, paying such awful prices for meat."

"Isn't it fierce the way some girls and women want to deck themselves out in furs? They look positively barbarous with the heads of animal hanging on all over them. Wearing of fur is a relic of barbarism anyway, so I think. A good warm cloth coat is plenty good enough for me, and always will be."

"I can't for the life of me see why married people get so worried every year over the price of coal. Coal is going up all the time. I know; but people always get a lot more of it than they really need. Nearly every house you go into is overheated, and the people suffer in consequence. If I were housekeeping I'd buy just a little coal as possible, and then use it sparingly, so that the folks in the house with me would have some chance of keeping healthy."—Brooklyn Times.

POSSIBLY A FEW DOORS OFF

But Little Man Had Small Chance of Getting What He Wanted in That Particular Store.

The apoplectic little man pounded the counter with his apoplectic little fist.

"I never dealt here before and I'll never deal here again!" he shouted. "The management here is rotten. You have nothing, nothing! I'll try once more. Have you any tomatoes?"

"No, sir; sorry, sir," replied the clerk.

"What? Not even in cans?"

"Not even in bottles."

The apoplectic little man crushed his hat down farther on his head and bit his mustache until the blood came.

He consulted the list in his hand.

"I'll give you another chance! Have you any potatoes? Think carefully now!"

"Not a potato in the place," said the clerk apologetically.

"Ye gods! Well, I'll give you one more chance. I'd like to see the end of this. Have you any sugar?"

"Not a grain, sir. Sorry, sir."

The apoplectic little man sat down on a stool and let his fist flutter to the floor.

"And you call this a grocery store?" he said tauntingly.

"No, sir," corrected the clerk mildly.

"This is a cigar store."

The apoplectic little man rolled off the stool in a fit.

Growing More Lavender.

Owing to the continuous rise in the price of lavender essence the acreage devoted to the cultivation of lavender flowers in the Marseille consular district has increased considerably.

The fact that barren soils, unproductive for other purposes, may be successfully utilized renders this industry particularly attractive to the farmers in his part of France. Thin, rocky soils, well exposed to the sun, situated at an altitude of 1,312 to 3,937 feet, are best adapted for this purpose. Suitable soils at lower altitudes, unless properly fertilized, seldom give satisfactory results. Experience shows that flowers cultivated at altitudes of 2,953 feet produce the best essence. Truffles are often planted between the rows, that every foot of soil may be put to use.

Judgment by Faith.

Judge not by deeds and things, take the good heart and the good motive on trust. Believe in it, affirm it.

To affirm a thing is literally to make it firmer. To glorify the good self of another is to set going the machinery by which goodness manifests.

When others believe us good, or wise, or lovely, we catch the vibration of the right transference and begin to believe in ourselves as true, beautiful and good. And whatever things we believe in we think upon, and we become so that what we think upon also we do and achieve.

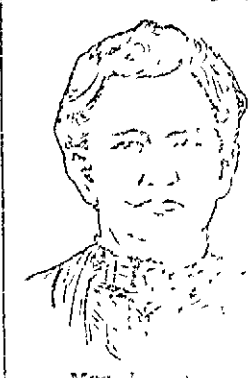

What we want to achieve in this world we believe upon, and it comes.—The Numinous.

Worth Knowing.

Automobiles date back to the time of Sir Isaac Newton, who in 1687 proposed a form of steam carriage which embodied the essential features of a steam automobile. In 1790 Nathan Read patented and constructed a model steam carriage in 1769 a French army officer, Nicholas Cugnot, built a three-wheel automobile. In America as early as 1786 Oliver Evans suggested a road wagon to be propelled by steam. In 1800 Richard Trevithick went 50 miles in a steam carriage which was exhibited in London. Many such were operated during the past century till 1895, since when improvement and perfection have come.

HAPPY MARRIAGE MAKER

There are unhappy married lives, but a large percentage of these unhappy homes are due to the illness of the wife, mother or daughter. The feelings of nervousness, the befogged mind, the ill-temper, the pale and wrinkled face, hollow and circled eyes, result most often from those disorders peculiar to women. For the woman to be happy and good-looking she must naturally have good health. Dragging-down feelings, hysteria, hot-flashes or constantly returning pains and aches—are too great a drain upon a woman's vitality and strength. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription restores weak and sick women to sound health by regulating and correcting the local disorders which are generally responsible for the above distressing symptoms.

Mrs. J. C. Smith

"I suffered greatly for a number of years and for the past three years have had that life was a misery to me," writes Mrs. R. P. Dierckx, of Uden, O., Route 4. "The doctors told me I would have to go to a hospital before I would ever be better. A year ago this winter and spring I was worse than ever before. At each period I suffered like one in torment. I am the mother of six children. I was so bad for five months that I knew something must be done, so I wrote to Dr. R. V. Pierce, and from him I received a letter. I took two bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and one of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and a box of 'Pain-Expeller' and have never suffered much since. I can't tell you how much I have enjoyed life since I started on Dr. Pierce's medicine. There is no use wasting time and money on other remedies when you can get Dr. Pierce's medicine."—The Medical Adviser by R. V. Pierce, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y., answers hosts of delicate questions about which women, single or married or widowed, are sent free of charge of 21 stamps to pay for the medicine, including only.

"Yes, they're going to bed—do you want to talk to baby?"

Just one illustration of the comfort and peace of mind which the telephone brings to the home:

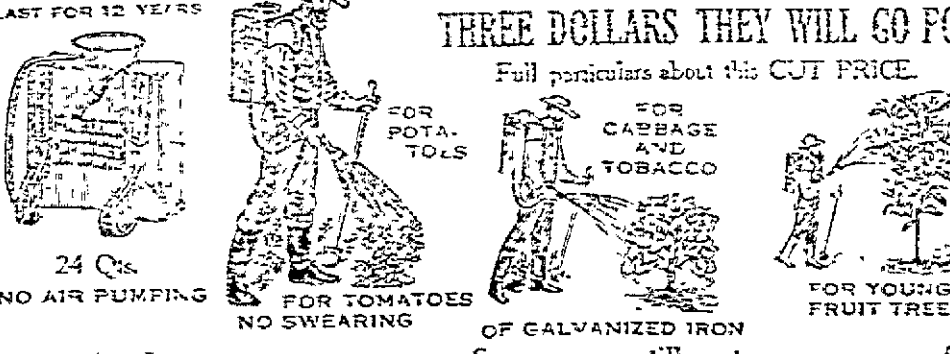

Suppose baby becomes ill in the middle of the night. It's just a matter of seconds to get the doctor on the telephone and obtain immediate advice or have him come over. Often this has meant the prevention of serious complications or even the saving of a tiny life.

Hadn't you better telephone or post-a-card to the Bell Business Office, asking about the low residence rates?

WHAT WE SAY WE DO, WE DO DO. $5 SPRAYERS

We do not want to carry any Sprayers over till next season, so we offer to ship to anybody who wants a good Sprayer for the poultry house or for the garden for $3.00 at this time of year, (the hens will soon pay for the sprayer.)

You do not have to pump air in these sprayers, they work automatically and easily until the very last drop in the tank is consumed. No stopping to pump air or anything else, as you have to with other sprayers.

Send for our large descriptive circular about the Lenox Sprayer and the cut price of them at this time of year, it will open up your eyes. Write to us to-day, put a string around your finger, then you won't forget it.

After you get one, you may want the agency for your town. If you have a trustworthy hired man, or a smart ambitious boy and a horse and buggy, one should be sold at every farm-house, and if there is any starch in the seller, he will sell for any one with an acre and a half now days, must have a sprayer.

"The Best Possible Newspaper!"

What sort of a paper is it? In the first place, it must be a Home Paper—the Woman's Friend and a part of her daily life. And it must be a NEEDS-SITY to the Business Man. It must not only tell what is happening in the world, but it must go farther and tell WHY it is happening and what it means.

The Best Possible Newspaper has a staff of correspondents covering the world field of the Associated and United Press, securing the earth for vital human facts. It has fashions and art, books and music, literature and politics at its right hand. It has the markets for the farmer, the merchant, the broker.

The world has never seen an age of greater constructive significance in politics, in science, in society. Every move in the field of action is a topic for discussion in cities, villages, hamlets, at cross roads. And the Best Possible Newspaper must equip its readers for intelligent understanding of all these things.

That is precisely why it is the simple truth that for any purpose, and for the purpose of the whole South, the BEST POSSIBLE NEWS-PAPER IS

The Stolen Portemonnaie

She Forgave the Thief Twice

By LILLIAN SHARPE

A young lady sat in a waiting room at a railway station watching the clock as its hands moved slowly to the time of departure of her train. Presently she turned to a seat beside her, placed it on her lap, opened it and took out her portemonnaie, which she hid in the pocket of her satchel and then she looked at her watch.

A young man with curly auburn hair and brown eyes was sitting at the other end of the seat and observed that the girl had forgotten to put her portemonnaie back into the satchel. He looked at his watch and it told him suddenly a railroad official called, "Train for Hampton."

The young lady started, glanced at the clock, saw that the hands stood at fifteen minutes before her train time, remembered that trains are opened to travelers some time before they leave and, grasping her satchel, hurried away. Seeing the words "Ticket Office" over a window, she remembered that she had forgotten to provide herself with a ticket and, turning aside, took position at the end of a line of several persons.

"If that isn't just like a woman!" said the young man with auburn hair to himself, and, reaching for the portemonnaie, he put it in his pocket and followed her, taking position next to her in the line. When it came her turn to purchase a ticket she asked for one to Hampton, at the same time opening her satchel. First there was a quick movement of the two articles, then a plunge of the hand down into the bag, after this a convulsive stirring up of everything.

"Oh, heavens, I've been robbed!" "Permit me to pay your fare," said the young man behind her, and, taking out his wallet, he bought a ticket for her and one for himself. Then they both made room for those behind them.

"What shall I do?" wailed the girl.

"You had better get aboard the train. You haven't time to investigate the loss of your portemonnaie, and it would probably avail nothing if you had. Was there much in it?"

"Only $2.33, four postage stamps and some samples."

"What exactness! I wish I could remember things like that. Never mind I have advanced the amount for your ticket. You haven't lost very much, good morning." And he lifted his hat deferentially.

Now, the young man knew very well the girl would not let him go without asking his address that she might return his loan. She asked him for it, and he said that it would be more convenient for him to give it to her in the train, so the two went on. He headed her on to the car, took a seat beside her and, producing a card bearing his name, Nathaniel Meriwether, wrote his address on it and handed it to her.

"Why, you live in Hampton?" she exclaimed.

"I don't live there, but I am going there."

That he was going there was perfectly true, but when he had entered the station he had just left he had no such intention. He was going to his home, fifty miles beyond.

"But you have given your street and number there?"

"That's the address of a friend."

The girl put the card in her satchel, and Mr. Meriwether took up the matter of the lost portemonnaie.

"Was any one," he asked, "near you while you were in the station?"

"No one near enough to get possession of anything that belonged to me. Now, I think of it, some one was sitting on the other end of the bench while I was waiting for the train."

"Man or woman?"

"I think it was a man."

"Did you take out your portemonnaie while he was there?"

"Yes, I did. I tired of waiting and took out this magazine." She still held it in her hand. "To do so I was obliged to remove the portemonnaie and some other things which I laid beside me. After getting out the magazine I put them all back again into the bag."

"Are you sure you put them all back?"

"Perfectly."

"Then there can be no doubt about the matter. The man who stole your portemonnaie was an expert at the slightest of hand and I continued to feel your portemonnaie every minute from the time I was in the station and saw a man sitting beside me."

"How careless of me! I should have identified the man!"

"I think I could."

"What was he like?"

"Well, he was not a very attractive looking person, but I wouldn't have taken him for a thief."

"Did you notice his features?"

"I noticed one feature. He was a red-headed chap."

The young lady cast a side glance at her companion's hair.

"Anything else?" she asked.

"Nothing especial. He was looking at you admiringly. I wonder that he stole from you."

A girl can't help being pleased at admiration even from a thief. The young lady instinctively put her hand to her back hair.

Not long after this, when the train was nearing Hampton, Mr. Meriwether thought it better that he should have the young lady's address; he might

ANNOUNCED THE GOOD FOLKS

Surely New York Chauffeur Might Have Been Just a Little Bit Accommodating.

"New Yorkers ain't what you would call neighborly," Mrs. Bates summed up to her friend, Mary Abby Thomas, at the end of a dramatic account of her ten days' sojourn in Manhattan. "No, nor even humanly accommodating as one man to another," she added, firmly; "they're plain stuck-up."

"How so?" inquired Mary Abby, with eager interest.

"In more ways than one, but one'll do," Mrs. Bates answered, with dignity, her long thin cheeks flushing as with some old-fashioned passion. "The last morning but one before we left, as Hiram and I were starting out for the day, he noticed a spot on the front of my gray skirt. You know how particular he is, and I expected he'd send me back to the hotel. But he didn't. He seemed to have a quick idea, near by I could make out from his face, and before I could ask what he was doing, he'd slipped up to a public chauffeur, pulled up at the side-walk in a big automobile. We'd seen him lots of times, and noticed that he favored our Alice's Frank considerable, and there was no reason why he shouldn't have recognized us. Besides, he'd ought to have known we wasn't the borrowing kind of folks, but meant to pay."

"Young man," Hiram says to him, 'can you spare us a little mite of your gasoline? My wife's got a grease spot on her dress.'"

"What's s's he. But it wasn't a question; he understood what Hiram said well enough, for he began to snicker, and before I could pull him along that boy was laughing fit to split."

"I call him stingy," said Mary Abby, with an air of furnishing a fresh interpretation of character. "It wouldn't have taken more than a drop or two of his old gasoline."—Youth's Companion.

STILL AN UNKNOWN REGION

Atmosphere at Extreme Point Above the Earth Has Never Been Determined.

Except for a narrow layer of air the atmosphere above us is practically unexplored. The most daring balloonists have only penetrated to a point seven miles above the earth. In this first stratum are found the clouds and the moisture and here the storms are formed. The second layer has been penetrated by pilot balloons carrying meteorological instruments to a distance twenty miles above the earth. The thermometers carried through this stratum show practically no change of temperature.

At an altitude of 50 miles the atmosphere consists almost entirely of hydrogen and this marks the upper limit of twilight. Clouds of fine volcanic dust sometimes rise to this height, which may be seen by reflected light, but this is the only solid matter found in this region. It is believed that hydrogen is replaced by some unknown gas of extreme lightness above this stratum, but as a matter of fact nothing is definitely known. The most daring scientists scarcely dare guess what is to be found at a height beyond a point 125 miles above the earth's surface.

Quickly Made Friends.

A trade association some years ago was in session at New York, and part of its members were dining in a cafe not far from the table at which sat Paderewski, and at the close of the feast one of the guests made his way to the cloak room, where he encountered the famous pianist. The newcomer stared for a long time at the fair-haired Pole, and at last said: "You are very much like Paderewski. Do you know him?" "I am Paderewski," rejoined the other, modestly. "What!" shouted the stranger, and, dashing at him, he shook both his hands. Before Paderewski sufficiently recovered from his surprise the man stepped to the door and calling the others of his party, yelled: "I say, Brown, Wheeler, Carey, all of you come here! I want to introduce you to my friend Paderewski."

Protects Whole Hand.

Protecting gloves generally in use for X-ray work are ordinary gloves having applied on the back a layer of rubber that contains lead, as lead is known to stop the rays. But this is somewhat stiff and lacks suppleness, and besides it is only the back of the hand that is protected. A French inventor makes use of a fabric which is much more elastic and it protects the whole of the hand from injury by the rays. The new fabric is woven from a material which is "sized" with a lead compound so that it contains three times the weight of lead. This tissue has the advantage of being much more elastic and acts as a very good screen for the X-ray, especially when the back portion is reinforced.

Save the Faucets.

Poise applied to plumbing was a "new one" to me when the friendly plumber who was replacing the worn out faucets read me a lecture on it, writes a contributor to Good Housekeeping. "Never turn your faucets on with a jerk," he enjoined. "Turn slowly and gently when turning the water on or off. The faucets will wear twice as long if you do. Nothing will wear out packing, especially on double spindle adjusted bathtub faucets so much as the habit of turning them on with sudden, sharp jerks."
